

Local Code of Corporate Governance

Introduction

Each local authority operates through a governance framework. It is an interrelated system that brings together an underlying set of legislative requirements, governance principles and management processes. Traditionally, local government has conformed in whole or in part and in many different ways to the principles of good governance and has had a sound base on which to build. There has been a strong regulatory framework in existence and robust arrangements for monitoring review.

Fundamental Principles of Corporate Governance

The report of the Committee on the Financial Aspects of Corporate Governance (the Cadbury Report) identified three fundamental principles of corporate governance as:

Openness	An open approach is required to ensure all interested parties are confident in the organisation itself. Being open in the disclosure of information leads to effective and timely action and lends itself to necessary scrutiny.
Integrity	This is described as both straightforward dealing and completeness. It should be reflected in the honesty of an organisation's annual report and its portrayal of a balanced view. The integrity of reports depends on the integrity of those who prepare and present them which, in turn, is a reflection of the professional standards within the organisation.
Accountability	This is the process whereby individuals are responsible for their actions. It is achieved by all parties having a clear understanding of those responsibilities and having clearly defined roles through a robust structure.

The Cadbury Report defined these three principles in the context of the private sector, and, more specifically, of public companies, but they are as relevant to public service bodies as they are to private sector entities.

Principles of Conduct in Public Life

Aspects of corporate governance in the public services have been addressed by the Committee on Standards in Public Life (the Nolan Committee) which was established in 1994 to examine concerns about standards of conduct by holders of public office. Standards of conduct are regarded as one of the key dimensions of good governance. The first report, published in May 1995, identified and defined seven general principles of conduct which should underpin public life, and recommend that all public service bodies draw up codes of conduct incorporating these principles. These principles in public life are:

Selflessness	Holders of public office should take decisions solely in terms of the public interest. They should not do so in order to gain financial or other material benefits for themselves, their family, or their friends.
Integrity	Holders of public office should not place themselves under any financial or other obligation to outside individuals or organisations that might influence them in the performance of their official duties.
Objectivity	In carrying out public business, including making public appointments, awarding contracts, or recommending individuals for rewards and benefits, holders of public office should make choices on merit.
Accountability	Holders of public office are accountable for their decisions and actions to the public and must submit themselves to whatever scrutiny is appropriate to their office.
Openness	Holders of public office should be as open as possible about all the decisions and actions that they take. They should give reasons for their decisions and actions and restrict information only when the wider public interest clearly demands.
Honesty	Holders of public office have duty to declare any private interests relating to their public duties and to take steps to resolve any conflicts arising in a way that protects the public interest.
Leadership	Holders of public office should promote and support these principles by leadership and example.

The Relevant Authorities (General Principles) Order 2001 outlined three additional principles to those identified by the Nolan Committee. These three are defined below. As part of the new ethical framework, the Local Government Act 2000 (England and Wales) provided for the development of a model code of conduct covering the behaviour of elected members and gave the Secretary of State and the National Assembly for Wales power to develop a set of general principles of conduct.

Respect for Others	Members should promote equality by not discriminating unlawfully against any person, and by treating people with respect, regardless of their age, religion, gender, sexual orientation or disability. They should respect the impartiality and integrity of the authority's statutory officers and its other employees.
Duty to uphold the law	Members should uphold the law, and on all occasions, act in accordance with the trust that the public is entitled to place in them.
Stewardship	Members should do whatever they are able to do to ensure that their authorities use their resources prudently and in accordance with the law.

These ten principles are incorporated into the Council's Constitution.

Good Governance Standards for Local Government

Delivering Good Governance in Local Government Framework 2016 published by the Chartered Institute of Public Finance & Accountancy (CIPFA) in association with Solace defines the principles that should underpin the governance of each local government organisation.

The concept underpinning the Framework is that it is helping local government in taking responsibility for developing and shaping an informed approach to governance, aimed at achieving the highest standards in a measured and proportionate way. The Framework is intended to assist authorities individually in reviewing and accounting for their own unique approach with the overall aim to ensure that:

- Resources are directed in accordance with agreed policy and according to priorities
- There is sound and inclusive decision making
- There is clear accountability for the use of those resources in order to achieve desired outcomes for service users and communities.

The Governing Body

The governing body of an organisation has overall responsibility for directing and controlling that organisation. In local government the governing body is the full Council. For England and Wales, the Local Government Act 2000 introduced new governing structures for all local councils, clarifying responsibility for making decisions and establishing a scrutiny role. Councils such as Blaby, with populations above 85,000 are required to have 'executive arrangements' whereby the executive comprises elected members.

Executive arrangements must include one or more overview and scrutiny committees through which non-executive councillors can question and challenge the policy and performance of the executive and promote public debate. The Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007 enables them to challenge the policies and practices of certain bodies. Councils also have the power to promote the economic, social and environmental well-being of their areas and to work with other bodies to develop community strategies.

Elected members are collectively responsible for the governance of the Council. The full Council's responsibilities include:

- Agreeing the Council's constitution comprising the key governance documents including the executive arrangements and making major changes to reflect best practice
- Agreeing the policy framework as defined in Article A or the Constitution
- Agreeing the budget

The Cabinet Executive is responsible for :

- All functions and powers other than those reserved to full Council or other bodies and as stated in part 3 of the Council's constitution
- Proposing the budget
- Implementing the policy framework and key strategies
- Its delegation scheme

The Chief Executive advises Councillors on policy and necessary procedures to drive the aims and objectives of the authority. The Chief Executive leads a Senior Leadership Team which is responsible for advising the executive and scrutiny committees on legislative, financial and other policy considerations to achieve the aims and objectives of the authority and is responsible for implementing Council decisions and for service performance.

The Local Code of Corporate Governance

Set out in this document is the Council's proposed updated Local Code of Corporate Governance which is based on the seven core principles adopted for local government from the report of the Independent Commission on Good Governance in Public Services. The seven principles being:-
